Preface

Although some discussions have been recently carried out on the political role of the a'yāns (notables) in the local politics of the Middle East and the Balkans since the 18th century, their very existence as a socio-economic power has not yet been fully examined with the exception of some general surveys.

In this preliminary report I hope to introduce some data on the socio-economic activities of the notables in Bosnia at the last stage of the Ottoman control of this region.

All of the materials presented here were selected from more than five thousands lists of property left (muhallefât defterleri) recorded in the Registers of the Religious Court (Şer'i Mahkeme Sicill Defterleri) in Sarajevo which cover the 16th to the 19th centuries. Needless to say, these lists of property are one of the chief sources for the study, not only of the socio-economic, but also of the cultural history of the people living in rural areas in the Ottoman lands.

This report is one of the results of my study-tour carried out in Yugoslavia and other countries in the Balkans and the Middle East between September 1977 and February 1978 as a member of the second academic study team "Comparative Survey on Islamic Societies and their Cultural Changes" financed by the Ministry of Education in Japan, which also bears the cost of this publication.

I should like to express my thanks to the Yugoslavian Government for permitting me to pursue my academic study in Beograd and in Sarajevo. I am also deeply indebted to Professor Kasim Dobraća in the Gazi Husrev-Begova Biblioteka in Sarajevo, Professor Dr. Avdo Sućeska in the University of Sarajevo, Professor Slavoljub Dindić in the University of Beograd, for their useful suggestions and kind assistance.

I am grateful to all of the staff of the Gazi Husrev-Begova Biblioteka, and to Dr. Tevfik Muftić, Mr. Ešref Kovačević and Mr. Salih Trako in the Orientalni Institut in Sarajevo, for their assistance and friendship.

Finally, but not least, I should like to thank Professor Hajime Kitamura, Director of the Institute for the Study of Languages and Cultures of Asia and Africa (ILCAA) and my colleagues

Assoc. Prof. Wataru Miki, Assoc. Prof. Aki'o Nakano, Assoc. Prof. Hiko'ichi Yajima, Assoc. Prof. Kōji Kami'oka in ILCAA, for their advice during my study-tour and in Japan.

Introduction

Sarajevo, the capital city of the Bosnia and Hercegovina Socialist Republic in Yugoslavia, is situated at 537 meters above sea level and on both banks of the Miljacka river. The old Turkish quarter, Bašcaršija, is even now a center of the cultural and social life of the Muslims (about 33% of the total population) living in this city. Despite of its severe climate, hot in summer and cold in winter, Sarajevo has been an entrepôt between Adriatic coastal ports and Balkan inland cities since the 16th century. Even today the city stands at a junction of the railways from Dubrovnik via Mostar, Split via Travnik, Zagreb and Beograd via Brod. A small town, Vrhbosna, was located here before the Turkish occupation of this region in the middle of the 15th century. The city was constructed by a Turkish governor, Gazi Hüsrev Bey, son of Counte Radivoje's brother Ferhad Bey, and Selçuka, daughter of Sultan Bayezid II. During his governorship (1521-1533 and 1536-1541) Sarajevo developed as a political center of the Bosnia and Hercegovina prefecture, although the governors were stationed in Banya Luka after 1580 and in Travnik after 1686. Commerce fully developed through the centuries as did textile, leather, copper, and iron industries. Animal husbandry has been the main source of livelihood for the peoples living in the high plateaus around the city, and in narrow valleys along the Bosna river and other streams, crops such as wheat, barley, rye, maize and heldine, a special crop of this region, were cultivated. Coal, copper and iron were exploited from the mines in Vareš, Kreševo, Kakanj and Zenica. All of these mines are located in the northern part of the city.

In the course of the 18th century the çiftliks (generally translated in English as big farms) increased in this country, as they did almost everywhere in the Ottoman lands. According to one document, some 912 private lands ('arâzî) and çiftliks were recorded in Saray, Visoko and Fojnica sub-districts (nâhiye) alone. Many of them were owned by the notables living in Sarajevo¹⁾. But limited by the geographical and ecological conditions of this mountainous region, the Bosnian çiftliks were small in comparison with the çiftliks developed in the fertile plains. The author of this report already published some documents on the 18th and 19th century çiftliks of the notables in Western Anatolia²⁾, the wide and fertile hinterlands of İzmir, one of the biggest ports in the Ottoman lands at that time. In such areas the term çiftlik can be exactly translated in English as a big farm, and they are different from the Bosnian çiftliks both in size and managerial systems. So, as for the çiftliks, the author introduced materials for comparative studies on these two regions. But the data offered in this book give wider and more detailed information about notables than the one already published. In the next two chapters the reader of this book can find lists of property left of the Bosnian notables, with their moneys, capital invested in various trades, merchandise, weapons, furniture and buildings owned by them in towns and villages.

A Turkish traveller in the middle of the 17th century, Evliya Çelebi recorded that Sarajevo was so large as to have 400 quarters (mahalle), 1080 shops and 17,000 houses on the banks of the Miljacka river³⁾, but these numbers seems to be exaggerated. According to one register recorded by Mula Muhamed Mestvica in 1841, 3,415 households were registered in 100 quarters⁴⁾. Table NO.1 is a list of the quarters and their inhabitants (See also Map NO.3).

The same register in 1841 also records administrative and religious notables living in the city as follows :

1) The governor : Seyyid Mehmed Fâzıl Paşa, 33 years old, living in the house NO.1 in Câmî'-i 'atîk quarter, the center of the city, had 3 sons (1, 3, and 5 years old) and 10 male servants (the register records only the male population) and 2 male slaves, one of them was Negro (19 years old).

2) General Mustafa Paşa, 36 years old, living in Çekrekçi Muslihiddin quarter, had 2 sons (2 and 17 years old) and 5 male servants.

3) The judge (kadı), Mehmed (Nazîf) Efendi, 40 years old, living in Ferhad Paşa quarter, had 3 sons (4, 8 and 14 years old, one of them had a title Bey and another one had a title Sipâhî). He died in Safer 1258 (Mar./Apr. 1842) and left a rather important inheritance of 62,841.5 kuruş including moneys, shops, houses in villages and other property according to the list of property⁵⁾.

4) Other Muslim notables are : a Mufti (Muslim jurist) of the city, a Mütevelli (trustee of the Gazi Hüsrev Bey's pious foundations), 2 Müderriis (professors of the medrese - Muslim theological school), 2 Müezzins (he who calls Muslim to prayer), 6 İmâms (leaders in public worship), 2 Şeyhs (heads) of the Kâdiriyya Order, a Şeyh of the Mevlevî Order and a Kaymakam (mayor ?).

5) The Metropolitan, Jorgačo, 27 years old, living in a mansion dwelt in by successive metropolitans of the city and 5 popes living in the various quarters.

6) The chief Rabbi, Mošo, 60 years old, living in Ferhad Paşa quarter, 3 Jewish money-changers (sarrâfs) and a Jewish doctor.

The Bosnia province (sancak) in the middle of the 19th century was divided into the following 26 administrative districts (kazâs) according to a document published by A. Sućeska⁶⁾: Saray, Prusać (Akhisâr), Jajče, Livno, Glamoć, Gölhisâr, Kljuc, Novosel, Bekijje, Banya Luka, Derventa, Kamengrad, Maglaj, Tešanj, Donja Tuzla, Gračanića, Bajelina, Gornja Tuzla, Birce, Zvornik, Kladanj, Srebrenica, Višegrad, Rogatica (Çelebi Pazari), Stari Vlasi and Novi Pazar. The same document shows that the governor of the Province had the right to collect taxes of 336,402 kuruş for himself in 2 installments every year under the name of İmdâd-i hazariyye.

The Saray district was also divided into 5 sub-districts, Saray, Visoko, Fojnića, Neretova and Prozor⁷⁾. In this province some large villages were distinguished from others and called cemâ'at (community). Cemâ'ats in Saray sub-district are as follows: Konješ, Hadžilli, Drozgometova, Rakovica, Pazarić, Vogošća, Osjek, Karye, Crnotina, Kovać, Kravica, Pale, Nahorevo, Blažuj, Pofalić, Gladgodina, Hrasnica, Lasica, Voykovik, Granica, Çiftlik-i Crno Rjeka, Butmir, Trnovo, Rakovanoga, Ledik, Dastanska, Mokra, Serdine and Çiftlik-i Zuravice (See map NO.1 and NO.2).

Chapter I : Materials on the socio-economic activities of the Bosnian notables

As mentioned above, the registers of the religious court are useful sources for the studies of cities and villages, and their inhabitants in the Ottoman Empire, especially after the abolition of the land surveys (tahrîr) at the end of the 16th century. Thousands of registers are scattered in the ex-Ottoman territory in the Middle East and the Balkans. The Gazi Husrev-Begova Biblioteka keeps 86 registers concerning the Saray district from the 16th to the middle of the 19th centuries. But the first 9 registers are scattered over a long period from the 16th to 18th centuries. However, the other 76 registers fill only about 70 years, from the 1780's and each register follows year after year. Table NO.2 is a list of registers with dates and pages.

The last 76 registers contain more than 5,200 lists of property left of peoples living in Sarajevo and its environment (3,374 for men including 428 non-Muslims and 1,899 for women).

Twenty lists of property are selected among them and introduced in this chapter in order to show the variety of the economic activities of the Bosnian notables. Although these lists offer useful data for both the socio-economic and the cultural history of this region, it is beyond the scope of this small publication to introduce all of the items recorded in each list. So, in this chapter, items not concerned with their economic activities are omitted, such as books, personal effects, moneys kept by themselves, clothing, weapons, kitchen utensiles, furniture, and others. While the selection was made among thousands of these lists, the author put special emphasis on the relationship between rural and urban economies.

When we examine the Bosnian notables from this point of view, we can divide them into three categories, apart from the traditional distinctions of the social categories of the peoples in the Ottoman society (erkân-i erba'a, that is ulemâ , asker, tüccâr and reâyâ).

1) Notables depending on the urban economy : this category of notables are money lenders, regional and inter-regional merchants, owners or managers of immovable buildings such as houses, shops, hâns (large commercial buildings) and others in the city (See the lists NO.I, II, V, VII, XIII, XV and XVII). Almost every non-Muslim rich citizen belongs to this category, although none of them are introduced.

2) Notables depending mainly on the rural economy : Such notables are included in this category as sipâhîs (holders of something like a feudalfief), kapetans (something like feudal lords in this period), rich farmers and animal breeders (See lists NO.VI, VII, IX, XI, XIV, XIX and XX). Some of them lived not in Sarajevo but in villages. It must be indicated here that if any notables had dedicated some of their properties to religious foundations, before their death, such notables can be mistakenly assigned to this category, because these properties could not be recorded in the list of property left.

3) Notables depending on both urban and rural economies : notables of this category usually had some buildings in the city, lent money to the citizens and peasants, and also invested their capital in some business. In addition they had çiftliks or cattle in the countryside (See the lists NO.III, IV, X, XVI, XVIII and XXI). It should be pointed out that they are rather typical in the Ottoman lands of this period, because of the development of the çiftlik land ownership.

After this short introduction, the brief lists of the above-mentioned notables are introduced by chronological order. Totals of the lists were often summed up by mistake, and the author has indicated these mistakes but did not correct them himself.

Map NO.2 may be useful in finding village names, which have been indicated so far as the author could find them in maps and other sources.

Chapter II : Lists of property left of the five notables in Sarajevo

The full lists of property left of the selected five notables are introduced without omission in this chapter. These are presented to the reader who knows Turkish, as examples showing the cultural and socio-economic lives of the rich citizens in Sarajevo. The glossary for this chapter may be useful for the reader who does not know Turkish.

The selection of the five lists was made with respect to their usefulness for comparative studies on the urban-rural relations in the Ottoman lands.

It is difficult for the author of this report to read the lists without error or ambiguity. This, partially, comes from mistakes of clerks in writing the registers, as Prof. Ö. L. Barkan pointed out in his book¹⁾, but, mostly, it comes from the author's lack of knowledge of some dialects in this region. So the author indicated the Arabic script of doubtful vocabulary in foot-notes. They do not appear in the glossary. As for some place and personal names, because of the great difficulty of finding their Serbo-Croatian equivalents from Turkish written by Arabic script which do not show the exact pronunciation, the author also put most such items in Arabic script as it is in foot-notes. Insofar as Serbo-Croatian equivalents are found in maps or in other sources, they are put next to the Arabic script in foot-notes, but in texts Turkish pronunciations are shown in the romanized style.

The transcription from the Arabic script to Roman letters is based on the system commonly used by Turkish scholars.

In the glossary for this chapter English translations of the Turkish vocabularies were made by mainly basing on the following dictionaries :

- 1) H. C. Hony & F. İz, A Turkish English Dictionary, Oxford, 1958.
- 2) J. W. Redhouse, A Turkish and English Lexicon, Constantinople, 1921.
